"Our TriMark Sales Consultant, Alexa, introduced us to the Alani collection. The dinnerware has been a success for our tabletop presentation providing aesthetic appeal, durability and value. The plate size and style complement our dining room tables and décor. The key factor for us was that the Alani line allowed us to provide our customers with a pleasing environment while also meeting our business needs."

"Since featuring the Venu dinnerware line on our tabletops at the Mesa Verde Country Club, we have been very pleased with the look and feel of the bone china collection. As Executive Chef, I am able to enhance the meal presentation which brings a rich new elegance to our food & beverage operation. The plates frame the food with a vivid light, really making the colors pop. Country club members and guests are very impressed with this dining room upgrade."

Quick Tip

Consider the weight, shape and texture as well as target clientele when testing the feel of forks, spoons and knives in your hand. Guests will be handling these pieces the most throughout their visit. Flatware with thinner stems may be the preferred choice for a more elegant setting where heavier, larger pieces are a better fit in a rustic display.

Classic tumblers offer elegant enjoyment for an array of spirits.

"I found that the Crystalex Swing glassware is an excellent quality and nice presentation. With its nice clean cut, the collection looks very strong in our banquet events. We have less breakage due to the resistance on the glassware and that is a product that we'll keep using on our property. Overall, the collection looks great on our tables."
